BAY ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS HOLD COMMUNITY BARGAIN DAYS

Bay St. Louis merchants gathered for a big mid-summer bargain day festival Friday, Saturday and Monday with lures of good buys at many stores to tempt Bay St. Louis shoppers.

At Kern's five and ten cent store with each 50 cent purchase, shoppers receive a chance on a five dollar merchandise certificate to be given away Saturday at 10 p. m.

Mauffray's has slashed its prices on third on summer sportswear for misses, boys and girls with items as shorts, sport shirts and slacks included in the bargain.

At Brown's Dry Goods, the newest of the city's stores, ten dish towels for one dollar is a sale item in addition to other good buys.

Olen's has nylon piece goods at 77 cents a yard for the bargain days. Also on sale there will be ladies and children's sandals at $1.77 and children's dresses at one dollar.

At Mercadal's Grocery 5 pounds of sugar will cost 29 cents with each five dollar order purchased.

Wilmer's grocery will give away 500 plastic spoon holders to the first 500 bargain day customers during these community bargain days.

This is the time to pick up those end-of-summer items for which the wise shopper waits. Fall clothing and equipment will be on the market soon.

ECHO SUBSCRIPTIONS SHOW SWING IN BIG CONTEST

The Sea Coast subscription contest moved into its fourth week, with residents and new subscribers filling the contestants' cards with increasing rapidity.

The Echo gives prompt service to the new subscribers, their names being added to the mailing lists as soon as the contestants arrive at The Echo office.

Fifty cents of each two dollar subscription goes back into the contestants' pockets, thus enabling them to make easy spending money for the summer.

In addition, at the contest's close, some lucky winner will receive a free scholarship for a year's study at St. Stanislaus of St. Joseph's Academy or the cash equivalent.

Seven additional prizes will be awarded to the contestant bringing in the most new subscriptions from Pass Christian, Waveland, Clermont Harbor, Bay St. Louis, Kiln, Lakeshore, Pearlinton, and other communities.

The contest expires Saturday, July 17th.

Twosome Entertainers At Canasta

Promise Better Water Facilities for Waveland

Mayor Garfield Ladner today promised the citizens of Waveland better water facilities now that the town has taken over the water company.

Purchase of the company was announced this week.

This week Ladner, recently elected, promised quick work on installation of the new water system. This, he said, "will eliminate our problem of water shortage."

Meanwhile, Waveland residents were asked to conserve water, and to "be patient."

McDonald's Kin Drowns During Holiday Outing

Mr. and Mrs. Dave McDonald were called to Wiggins, Miss., this week, following the death of Mrs. McDonald's brother-in-law, Sherman Davis, who was drowned Monday while on a fishing trip.

Davis, who with three companions, was fishing from the bank of an artificial lake in Stone County, went into the water and apparently drowned when a cramp made it impossible for him to swim to shore.

The deceased is survived by his wife, the former Eleanor Smith, who was home demonstration agent for Hancock County before her marriage. Also surviving is one daughter, aged seven.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Wiggins.

NEW MOTEL OPENING SOON

Sam A. Cowart announced this week that the new motel-restaurant-truck stop now being built on Highway 90, three miles west of Bay St. Louis, will open next week.

The formal opening of the establishment will be about July 17, with the public invited to attend.

"It will be one of the most modern places in this part of the South," Cowart said.

Dr. Eldredge Retires

The well-known and popular Bay St. Louis physician, said in a simple statement he "wishes to announce to the public that as of July 1st, 1954, he is retiring from his general practice of medicine."

Born in Abbeville, La., Dr. Eldredge has followed his profession for approximately 50 years, members of his family stated. He came to Bay St. Louis about ten years ago in order, that he said, "J. S. Eldredge could be with their daughter, who is Mrs. Walter Gex, of South Beach."

The wartime shortage of doctors hit the nation about this time. Dr. Eldredge gave up for the time being his plans to stop practicing medicine.

He will continue to act as a director of the Merchants Bank here, and will, his family said, participate in other civic activities as usual.

Sportsweek

By GREGORY FAYRE

As I walked in the clubhouse of the Pass Christian Golf Club my eye caught a jovial, gray-haired man comfortably sitting in one of the chairs. From the attention he was receiving from members present it was obvious he was Alec Cunningham, the golf pro at this progressive new course.

Wanting you to meet this man, I immediately introduced myself and told him of my mission. Alec then began to tell me with a Scottish accent, a little of his life's history.

He started in the game of golf going on 60 years ago at the age of 14. He taught himself by hitting a round piece of cork from one lamp post to another.

That year he finished second as a professional in the tournament in St. Andrews, Scotland, his birthplace.

At this tender age he became the youngest golf club pro in the world. He was adept at building golf courses and Tom Morris, the dean of world golf at the time, requested his services in building a course at Hedlot Road, France.

After this adventure he accepted a job as head pro at Biarritz, France. Here he had 60 professionals under his leadership. Yet, he was only 20 years old.

During the summer seasons he gave lessons to many of the French royalty. Among them were the Grand Duke Alexander and family of Russia. Alec said, "When I was at this course I used to have the honor to play the short hole on the course with King Edward VII."

At this period in his life he came to the United States where he continued his golfing activities. He finished second in the Western Open in 1915 and in 1918 he finished fourth in the National Open.

After he retired from active tourney play he was a member of Scotland's International Team. One of his opponents was Bobby Jones.

"I then began to build courses and became the golf pro at many of them. At that time you couldn't make any money as a professional golfer. During 1915 even with the lessons I was giving at $5.00 apiece I still came out in the hole at the end of the year."

"I have built 48 courses all over the world. I built the National Golf Course for the professional Golfers Association in Florida," Alec said.

Some of the clubs where Alec served as a pro were the North Shore Club in Chicago for 18 years, the Wheeling, West Virginia Club for 6 years, Pine Hills for 6 years and one or two foreign clubs.

He came to Pass Christian Isles in 1952 when he began to construct the course. Commenting on the condition of this course he said, "It is in wonderful shape for a new course and it is a very pleasant one to play. The fairways are excellent for the time the course has been here. The outstanding thing about it I believe that at no time do you feel that you are playing the same hole twice."

Comparing the modern day golfers with those of yesteryear he said, "The golfers nowadays do not have as many shots to play. The courses are much easier because of their good condition. As for the golf clubs there is no comparison between them. Now the clubs are fitted to the person. Above all clubs the wedge is the greatest change, with this it is easy to get out of trouble."

"I am not surprised at the scores that are made now. The thing that does impress me as rather surprising though, is even with the equipment and courses the professionals are not shooting any 60's and 61's. In fact you see very few 72 pars."

During his long career Alec has registered 11 61's on the score card and 11- holes in ones.

"There isn't any hole on a course that shouldn't be reached in two strokes. That is why I believe the par for the professional should be 68 at all the courses," he said.

Choosing the greatest golfer he has ever seen, the former president of the Illinois P. G. A. and the National P. G. A. thought very carefully and finally said, "Harry Vaughn was the greatest golfer I have ever seen. He was the Welchman. This is quite a confession from a Scotchman like me."

"Next to him I would say Walter Hagan, and John McDermott. Among the present day crew I have to choose Sam Snead. I believe that Snead will be playing when Ben Hogan cannot play anymore. I say this because Sam has the soundest and most natural swing in the business."

Alec has not been able to participate in the game since he has been here. He dislocated his right shoulder and it keeps him from swinging it.

He keeps in touch with the sport by teaching it to newcomers. "I have 26 students. That is a good many for a small club like this. It shows that the people here have an interest in the game," he said.

Wednesday 10:27 AM 9:57 PM

Wade Creekmore, director of the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission, said today that women fishing in the state with artificial bait still have to have licenses.

"Some confusion has arisen," he said, "because during the 1954 legislative session, a bill was passed exempting women hunters from the purchase of licenses."

He called attention to the fact that servicemen also are required to have licenses.

"Servicemen from Mississippi classed as residents of the state have the same privileges as civilians residing here."

"Regardless of the type bait used, all non-residents fishing in Mississippi must have licenses."

With other activities hereabouts over the Fourth - fishing and crabbing claimed their share. Hundreds of fishermen were seen in all bayous, rivers and lakes of this section - fly fishing, still fishing, setting out trout lines, etc.

Compiling parties were seen every where - all having a wonderful time.

Must have been a glorious feeling for Mrs. Sidney Manieri when she won that 6-h. p. out-board motor at the Auto-Lec Store last week.

Soft crabs must still be giving here. Henry Lang reported catching a couple of dozen last week.

It was quite a sight to see those five scouts from Troop 220 climb that greased pole at the Fourth of July celebration, sponsored by the American Legion. It was cooperation extraordinary - plus a $5.00 prize.

Bill Witter and Sidney Manieri caught some real big speckles last week at the Black Beacon. Sid said there weren't many but all big ones.

All fishing camps reported a record business over the Fourth weekend. Boat were at a premium and live bait "out of this world." Don't think the boys running those camps have caught up on their sleep yet.

Pass Christian Isles Golf Course reported a record-breaking crowd over the weekend with many out-of-town players touring the course. A dance at the club Saturday night was a humdinger and provided lots of fun.

Camp Onward has a full house just now according to Miss Camille, supervisor. Between fishing and crabbing, seafood meals are plentiful at the camp.

Tony Spence has joined the fly fishing group. He goes from his camp on Bayou Coco and has been getting some nice perch and green trout.

Brown, Griffon

Tie In Blind Hole Golf Tourney

Mrs. Evelyn Frederico was the runnerup with a net 12.

Mrs. Henry Wittmann won the putting contest with a score of 19.

Others competing in this ladies day card, were Mrs. R. L. Happ, Mrs. Arthur Tipping, Mrs. Ed Gamard, Mrs. Robert Hamer, Mrs. George Burnes, Mrs. Philp Foote, Mrs. Shelby Tucker, Mrs. Margy Cimeaux, Mrs. John David, Mrs. Evelyn Kilian, and Misses Cecile Cox and Maude Frye.

Ladner Re-Elected President Of Sportsman League

W. R. (Jack) Ladner was re-elected president of the Hancock County Sportsman League at its annual meeting last Tuesday night.

Other officers elected were Guitzky Ruhr, vice-president and Edward Englehorn, secretary-treasurer.

He said, "I requested that a change be made in the dove season, with the season to be opened on October 15th and running for 30 consecutive days. Also that there be a change in the opening time from dawn to dusk contrary to the previous time of 12:00 noon to dusk."

It also requested that the bag limit on doves be increased from eight to ten per day with no more than 20 in possession."

Ladner also discussed the possibility of having an open season or deer. Creekmore announced that an investigation is under way to determine whether an open season will be justifiable.

Promise Better Water Facilities for Waveland

Mayor Garfield Ladner today promised the citizens of Waveland better water facilities now that the town has taken over the water company.

Purchase of the company was announced this week.

This week Ladner, recently elected, promised quick work on installation of the new water system. This, he said, "will eliminate our problem of water shortage."

Meanwhile, Waveland residents were asked to conserve water, and to "be patient."

McDonald's Kin Drowns During Holiday Outing

Mr. and Mrs. Dave McDonald were called to Wiggins, Miss., this week, following the death of Mrs. McDonald's brother-in-law, Sherman Davis, who was drowned Monday while on a fishing trip.

Davis, who with three companions, was fishing from the bank of an artificial lake in Stone County, went into the water and apparently drowned when a cramp made it impossible for him to swim to shore.

The deceased is survived by his wife, the former Eleanor Smith, who was home demonstration agent for Hancock County before her marriage. Also surviving is one daughter, aged seven.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in Wiggins.

The rooms will feature wall-to-wall carpeting, tile baths and air conditioning.

Dr. Eldredge Retires

Dr. H. A. Eldredge, who postponed his retirement from the practice of medicine for ten years due to the post war's emergency need for doctors, today announced the closing of his office.

The well-known and popular Bay St. Louis physician, said in a simple statement he "wishes to announce to the public that as of July 1st, 1954, he is retiring from his general practice of medicine."

Born in Abbeville, La., Dr. Eldredge has followed his profession for approximately 50 years, members of his family stated. He came to Bay St. Louis about ten years ago in order that he and Mrs. Eldredge could be with their daughter, who is Mrs. Walter Gex, of South Georgia.

The wartime shortage of doctors hit the nation about this time. Dr. Eldredge gave up for the time being his plans to stop practicing medicine.

He will continue to act as a director of the Merchants Bank here, and with his family will, participate in other civic activities as usual.

State Game Commission To Hold Hearing On New Fishing Rule Which Enrages Bay St. Louis

Walter Gex, Jr., president of the State Seafood Commission, announced today that the State Game and Fish Commission has agreed to give all interested parties a hearing in the ruling which moved the fresh water line 50 feet north of the highway bridge.

The Seafood Commission caused quite a stir among the local organizations when it ruled that the water line should be moved. This meant that for a person to fish off the bridge he would have to secure a license.

Gex said, "The present status of this situation today is the same as it has always been. This new ruling, if it goes into effect, will not begin until August 1st. After I received several protests from local groups I contacted members of the Game and Fish Commission and they agreed to hold a hearing. This hearing will take place before the August 1st deadline.

"It is my personal opinion that the water line should be set 50 feet north of the highway bridge. But, of course, I cannot speak for the Seafood Commission. We had to set a line after the state legislature passed a law forcing us to do so."

Scaife said, "The present boundary that has been chosen will make it necessary to have a license to fish. This will create quite a bit of hardship on our summer visitors who use the bridge for that purpose."

A spokesman for the American Legion said, "We feel that the setting of the fresh water line at that point would be detrimental to the better interest of the community. It is not our intention to reflect on the integrity of any member of either commission in the setting of this line. Apparently they had what appeared to be good reasons for their actions. However, we feel that the setting of the line there can lead to much adverse publicity for Bay St. Louis and do much to shatter the good will we have helped to establish in recent months."

"Our own people will be required to have a fishing license in order to fish with plugs or lures from the highway bridge. This is unthinkable, when it is so readily apparent to all that no fresh water fish are found south of the north of the seawall."

Lambert Boyd, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said, "The Chamber of Commerce has issued a protest to the setting of the water line at that position. We feel that since we have a lot of out of town fishermen this would hurt our summer and tourist trade."

Also since there is no fresh water fishing at that point we think that it is not justified."

It was reported that the Hancock County Sportsmen League will also offer a rebuttal to this ruling.

Bogalusa Man's $12,500 Plane Burns Here

A Chrysler dealer from Bogalusa made an expensive fishing trip to Bay St. Louis. While he was enjoying this sport his private airplane, valued at $12,500, burned at the local airport.

Mr. Wesley, who owned a four seat Navion, flew here last Wednesday to catch fish. He landed at the airport and left his plane there. Some sort of electrical short in the plane caused a combustion that resulted in the fire.

The airplane was completely destroyed. Nothing could be salvaged.

Art Garcia Cited For Scholarship

Arthur C. Garcia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garcia of this city, was placed on the list of President's Scholars at Mississippi State.

This honor is merited by students who have exceptional grades in college.

Ben Hilburn, president of Mississippi State College said, "Garcia has brought honor to Mississippi State College and has given his family and friends reason to be proud of him. It is not easy to earn grades which entitle one to be listed as a President's Scholar. Only students who combine ability with devotion to duty can earn them. It is for this reason that Arthur Garcia deserves to be cited for outstanding achievement in scholarship."

Thousands Attend Legion's 4th Fete

The American Legion estimated that ten thousand persons attended the big Fourth of July celebration its organization sponsored here this past weekend, in the biggest demonstration of the city's hospitality remembered by most residents.

Despite an afternoon of intermittent showers, the city beach and nearby streets were crowded with visitors and local citizens who participated in the free legion-sponsored games, speaking ceremonies and street dance.

Highlight of the evening was the display of fireworks handled by Gerald Price's committee with fireworks supplied by the Chamber of Commerce.

For the street dance, held on North Beach during the evening, one of the largest crowds ever to attend such a function was present.

Heading the afternoon's speaking program was district attorney Boyce Holleman, who delivered an address on Americanism. This part of the program was conducted by the local legion commander Lucien Kidd, who was joined in brief speech-making by Mayor John Scaife, Lambert T. Boyd of the Chamber of Commerce, J. Cyril Glover, Sylvan Ladner and County Supervisor Joe Jones.

"I expect to have him back very soon," said Egloff.

By GREGORY FAVRE

As I walked in the clubhouse of the Pass Christian Golf Club my eye caught a jovial, gray-haired man comfortably sitting in one of the chairs. From the attention he was receiving from members present it was obvious he was Alec Cunningham, the golf pro at this progressive new course.

Wanting you to meet this man, I immediately introduced myself and told him of my mission. Alec then began to tell me with a Scottish accent, a little of his life's history.

He started in the game of golf going on 60 years ago at the age of 14. He taught himself by hitting a round piece of cork from one stump post to another.

That year he finished second as a professional in the tournament in St. Andrews, Scotland, his birthplace.

At this tender age he became the youngest golf club pro in the world. He was adept at building golf courses and Tom Morris, the dean of world golf at the time, requested his services in building a course at Hedlot Road, France.

After this adventure he accepted a job as head pro at Biarritz, France. Here he had 60 professionals under his leadership. Yet, he was only 20 years old.

During the summer seasons he gave lessons to many of the French royalty.

Among them were the Grand Duke Alexander and family of Russia. Alec said, "When I was at this course I used to have the honor to play the short hole on the course with King Edward VII."

At this period in his life he came to the United States where he continued his golfing activities.

He finished second in the Western Open in 1915 and in 1918 he finished fourth in the National Open.

After he retired from active tournament play he was a member of Scotland's International Team. One of his opponents was Bobby Jones.

"I then began to build courses and became the golf pro at many of them. At that time you couldn't make any money as a professional golfer. During 1915 even with the lessons I was giving at $5.00 apiece I still came out in the hole at the end of the year."

"I have built 48 courses all over the world. I built the National Golf Course for the professional Golfers Association in Florida," Alec said.

Some of the clubs where Alec served as a pro were the North Shore Club in Chicago for 10 years, the Wheeling, West Virginia Club for 6 years, Pine Hills for 5 years and one or two foreign clubs.

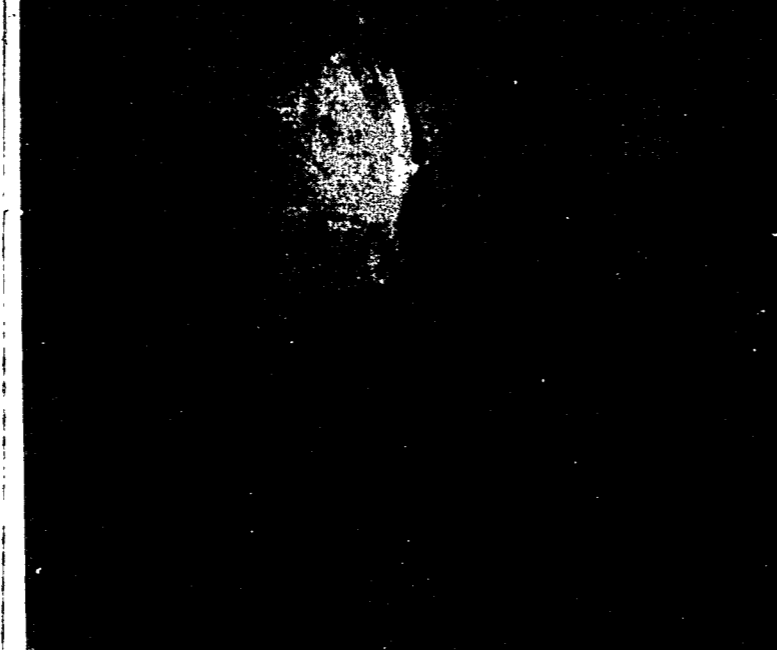

He came to Pass Christian Isles in 1933 when he began to construct the course. Commenting on the condition of this course he said, "It is in wonderful shape for a new course and it is a very pleasant one to play. The fairways are excellent for the time the course has been here. The outstanding thing about it I believe that at no time do you feel that you are playing the same hole twice."

Comparing the modern day golfers with those of yesterday he said, "The golfers nowadays do not have as many shots to play. The courses are much easier because of their good condition. As for the golf clubs there is no comparison between them. Now the clubs are fitted to the person. Above all clubs the wedge is the greatest change, with this it is easy to get out of trouble."

"I am not surprised at the scores that are made now. The thing that does impress me as rather surprising though, is even with the equipment and courses the professionals are not shooting any 60's and 61's. In fact you see very few 72 pars."

During his long career Alec has registered 11 61's on the score card and 11- holes in ones.

"There isn't any hole on a course that shouldn't be reached in two strokes. That is why I believe the par for the professional should be 68 at all the courses," he said.

GOLF PROFESSIONAL—Alec Cunningham the golf pro at the Pass Christian Isles Golf Club is shown as he poses next to the portrait of himself in the club house. (See Sportsweek)

Choosing the greatest golfer he has ever seen, the former president of the Illinois P. G. A. and the National P. G. A. thought very carefully and finally said, "Harry Vaughn was the greatest golfer I have ever seen. He was the Welchman. This is quite a confession from a Scotchman like me."

"Next to him I would say Walter Hagen, and John McDermott. Among the present day crew I have to choose Sam Snead. I believe that Snead will be playing when Ben Hogan cannot play anymore. I say this because Sam has the soundest and most natural swing in the business."

Alec has not been able to participate in the game since he has been here. He dislocated his right shoulder and it keeps him from swinging it.

He keeps in touch with the sport by teaching it to newcomers. "I have 26 students. That is a good many for a club like this. It shows that the people here have an interest in the game," he said.

Must have been a glorious feeling for Mrs. Sidney Manieri when she won that 8-h. p. outboard motor at the Auto-Lec Store last week.

Soft crabs must still be giving here. Henry Lang reported catching a couple of dozen last week.

It was quite a sight to see those five scouts from Troop 220 climb that greased pole at the Fourth of July celebration, sponsored by the American Legion. It was cooperation extraordinary - plus a $5.00 prize.

Bill Witter and Sidney Manieri caught some real big speckles last week at the Black Beacon. Sid said there weren't many but all big ones.

All fishing camps reported a record business over the Fourth weekend. Boat were out at a premium and live bait sold out of this world. Don't think the boys running those camps have caught up on their sleep yet.

Pass Christian Isles Golf Course reported a record-breaking crowd over the weekend with many out-of-town players touring the course. A dance at the club Saturday night was a humdinger and provided lots of fun.

Camp Onward has a full house just now according to Miss Camille, supervisor. Between fishing and crabbing, seafood meals are plentiful at the camp.

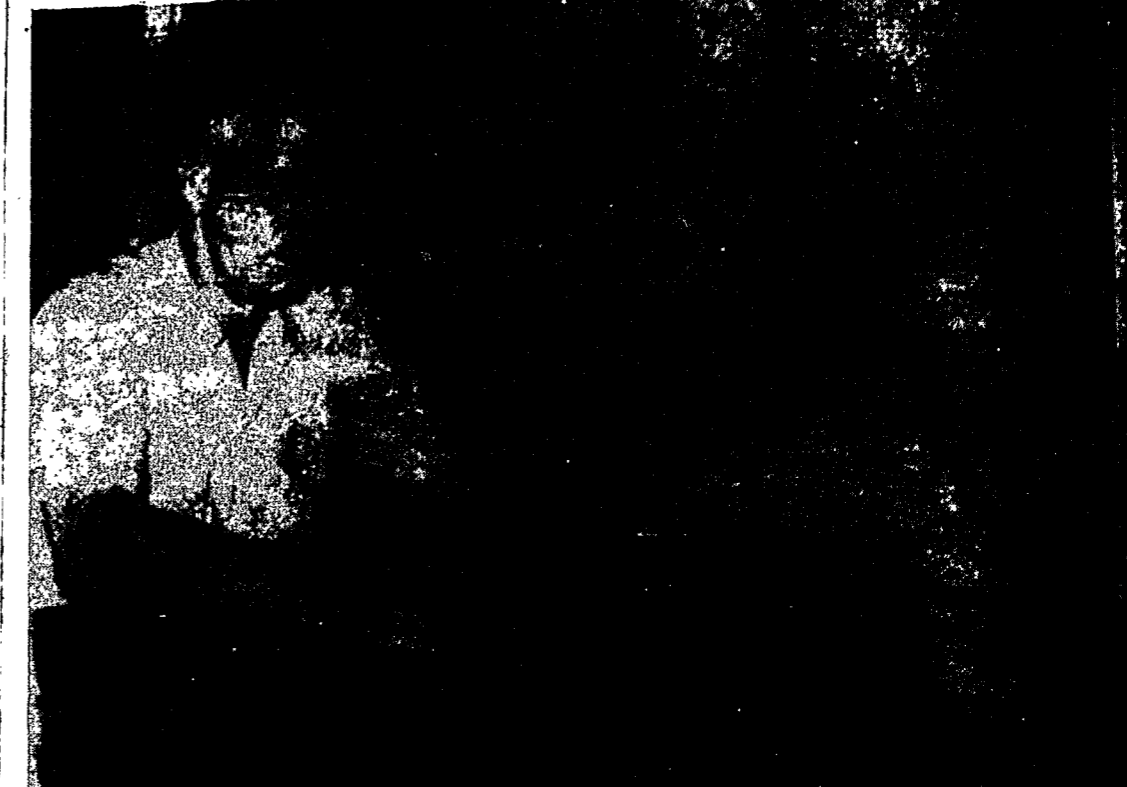

Tony Spence has joined the fly fishing group. He goes from his camp on Bayou Coco and has been getting some nice perch and green trout.

"I also requested that the bag limit on doves be increased from eight to ten per day with no more than 20 in possession."

Ladner also discussed the possibility of having an open season on deer. Creekmore announced that an investigation is under way to determine whether an open season will be justifiable.

Sale Of Historic House Recalls Civil War Era For Miss Necaie

There was always someone for the extra place at the table. Of the nine children who lived in the Necaie home, two died of yellow fever. The others, as they married, built homes along the beach, near their parents' house. The Necaies, who gave their name to Necaie Avenue here, owned the whole block, so this family community was quite practical.

Mrs. A. G. Favre, who with a sister, Mrs. Leonide Monti, were born in the Necaie family home, remembers that there was a cornfield on the property—and a dairy. The oak tree in the yard, she adds, must be at least 100 years old.

To settle an estate, the property went up for auction and was purchased by John McDonald. McDonald plans no drastic changes in the looks of the home, he says. It will be painted and replumbed and put in good order. But otherwise, when it once again changes hands as part of a real estate transaction, the new owner will have as his home, one of the city's landmarks—postwar, yes. But look which war!

The large, high ceilinged house, according to Miss Alice Necaie, the last member of the family to occupy the house, was built on her father's return from the war between the states.

Miss Necaie's mother, who was Adele Luc De Guerre, had moved from the family home on South Beach during the fighting. The mother of nine, she had been afraid to stay with her family in town while her husband was away.

When the tumult died, and the family was reunited, Miss Necaie says, her father and grandfather and friends built the home on Main Street.

In the good old fashioned style, it contained a center hall, large rooms, shutters at the various windows and massive, bannisters. There are two porches, one running across the front of the house and the other halfway across the back.

There was a room used for sewing, three bedrooms, a living room and dining room, the latter being the scene of many a company gatherings.

Miss Necaie, who now resides with her family at the A. G. Favre home on Dunbar, remembers that much of their company in the days of her childhood came to the city by boat. Others arrived on horseback and by buggy. And Hot? Feel like moving into the refrigerator?

That isn't very practical, but to your list of aids to coolness you might like to add two of the snow cone businesses operating during these hot months.

Mrs. Naomi Toulme has a snow cone stand on her front porch at 406 Main Street.

Mrs. Toulme has been in business at this stand for about five years now.

"I enjoy having the children come," she says. "My husband wasn't sure this thing would work, but it's been successful for about five years now."

On a table on the porch, the snow cone lady has her machine for shaving ice and has bottles containing about 20 different flavors for her product. Her favorite is raspberry. The children's favorite is strawberry. She makes the syrups at home.

Other unusual flavors she has are pistachio, root beer and bugleum essences.

Mrs. Toulme is open from about ten in the morning until dark. Her cones cost 5 and 10 cents.

And on Union St., in the yard of the Nolan Ladner home Mickey Ladner operates his family's snow cone stand which dispenses about 16 flavors in the icy treat.

He does the best business with strawberry, but close behind this favorite is spearmint. Other flavors the Ladner place has are chocolate, lime, nectar, cherry, banana, lemon, blueberry, grape, pineapple, coconut and several others.
